ONE OF POISONED MOSS FAMILY DIES: OTHERS IMPROVE: Funeral Held For Eldest Son, Arthur, 14, At Leftwich Cemetery: Seek Dreaded Weed.

Milk-poisoning took its tolls at 4 o'clock Friday morning as Arthur Moss, 14, oldest son of James Moss, tenth district farmer, succumbed to a slege of illness resulting from drinking poisoned milk.

Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at the Leftwich grave yard in the twelfth district by the Rev. J. O. Davis, former pastor of the Chestnut Mound Methodist church.

While burial services were being conducted for the poison victim, three other members of the same family lay critically ill with the same malady. Mrs. Moss, a daughter, Ina Mae, 18, and a son, Ray, 11, who were defined as being "hovering between life and death," this week took a turn for the better and Tuesday were reported as greatly improved. None of them was able to be up, however.

Search is being made by residents of the community for the dreaded milk weed, and many theories were advanced as to the cause of the sickness. White snake root was said to have been a possible source of the distribution of the poison from the cow to the family. The cow from which the family got milk and a steer which grazed on the same pasture, died last week.

Led by Dr. L. M. Freeman, of Granville, physicians fought the disease with every force at their command, and today a partial victory seemed assured. The state department of public health lent its aid in combating what was believed at first a possible epidemic. No other cases have been reported.

Putnam County Herald, Cookeville, TN: Thursday, 12 November 1931.

Note: Cows that grazed on the plant (which was widespread throughout the Midwest) passed the toxin tremetol into their milk. Hence the name, milk sickness. Anyone who drank the milk would experience muscle pain, loss of appetite, vomiting, gastrointestinal discomfort, constipation, bad breath and finally irreversible coma. Safer grazing practices and the mixing of milk from many cows at the dairy has curbed the incidence of the illness.

A week would pass before Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of Abraham Lincoln, succumbed to an illness that had plagued Midwestern frontier families in the 19th century. Records show that more than half of the deaths in Dubois County, Indiana, during this time could be attributed to one plant, Eupatorium rugosum or white snakeroot. She died October 5, 1818, at the age of 34.

INA MAE MOSS, 18, THIRD TO SUCCUMB TO 'MILD SICKNESS': Funeral Services Conducted Tuesday Afternoon For High School Girl: Member Senior Class:

"Milk sickness" struck its terrible blow again at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning as Ina Mae Moss, 18, daughter of James Moss, 10th district farmer, succumbed to the effects of drinking poisoned milk.

Funeral services were conducted for the beautiful young high school student at the home Tuesday afternoon by Dr. Harry L. Upperman, president of Baxter Seminary, to which institution Miss Moss was to return next week to finish her senior year. Burial was in Leftwich cemetery, in the 12th district of Putnam county, beside a sister who died in October, and two brothers, who were also victims of milk poisoning.

Was Better:

Ina Mae's condition was believed by physicians to have been slightly improved, and plans to remove her to a dormitory room at Baxter Seminary had been made by Dr. Upperman, who was to give her her final year of schooling there. She was stricken again Monday night, however, and never recovered.

Ina Mae was the third of the children of Jim Moss to die of the illness, the first being Arthur, 14, and the second, James, 9.

Mrs. Moss, who barely escaped death several weeks ago as a result of drinking the infected milk, was reported as being improved Tuesday, she being able to be up. She still suffers from the ravages of the disease, however, and is not thought to be out of danger. Another son, Ray, 11, who was among the first to be stricken, is still in bed critically ill.

FAMILY NEEDS AID!

The stricken family of Jim Moss is suffering from acute want. They have barely enough to eat, hardly enough clothes to cover their backs, and not enough fuel to provide comfort during cold weather.

Their needs are real, and it is a worthy case. Imagine your own plight had you lost four children, three of them by a terrible illness caused by poisoning.

If you can spare any food – and it is plentiful –; if you can spare any clothes – and they, too, are plentiful; if you can help gather fuel for the family, communicate with the Herald, Sheriff Hubert Crawford, or Dr. Harry L. Upperman, at Baxter.

SECOND MOSS FAMILY DIES OF DREAD DISEASE; Death Toll Mounts As James 9, Succumbs to Attack of ‘Milk Sickness’: Others Sick but are up:

Death toll mounted in the poison-stricken family of Jim Moss in the tenth district of Putnam county early Sunday morning as a son, James, 9, succumbed to an aftermath of the horrible ravages of ‘milk-sickness.’

The child had not been sick more than a few days when he died having recovered, it was believed, from an earlier attack which had been comparatively mild. Either because of too early exposure, or because of something he had eaten, the child was again taken ill last week.

Other members of the family, who had been critically ill recently with the same malady, today were reported able to be up, but were still sick, and unable to do anything. Another son, Shelby, 6, is in bed with the disease and his condition is reported as being “serious.”

Need Help:

The family in the meantime, has been poverty-stricken along with the disease, and stand in a real need for aid in the form of food, clothing, bed clothing, and heating facilities. The daughter, Ina Mae, 18, who at first was expected to die, will be given a home at Baxter Seminary, where she will graduate in high school next spring. In the event that medical aid is further needed to alleviate her suffering, it will be supplied at Baxter.

It was feared Monday night that the impression that all members of the family had recovered had been made on the public, but it was shown to the Herald that that was a mistake. Communication with the Putnam County Chapter of the American Red Cross brought assurance of further relief, and the Shriner’s Club has appointed a committee to look after the needs of the family and make arrangements to supply them.

Funeral services for James Moss were conducted Monday afternoon at the Leftwich cemetery in the twelfth district by the Rev. B. M. Harness, of the Methodist church.
