Second-graders get close to nature in apple orchard

On a recent October day, Ken Smith of Silver Point accompanied a group of second-graders at Heavenly Host Lutheran School around his apple orchard and fielded their questions about raising apples.

By BOBBIE BRUTON

Herald-Citizen staff: Published November 08, 2002 3:53 PM CST

"The orchards have been successful and this is our way of giving back," Smith says.

Smith raises about 15 varieties of apples including Arkansas Blacks, golden delicious, winesap, Rome and Granny Smith. The orchard on his property consists of 10 acres of apple and peach trees, and he leases another 10 acres filled with apple trees. He has been growing apples and peaches since 1995.

He has been offering free tours to school children and church groups for the past three years.

He says one of the things he enjoys most about the tours is getting to meet the children.

"The kids are a blast and they ask adult questions."

Smith conducts the apple orchard tours in October. Most of his apples have been harvested by then, but he saves some so that children on class trips will be able to pick apples from the tree when they visit.

Retired since 1986, he returned to his old homeplace in Silver Point and began his "retirement job."

Smith does most of the work himself with some assistance from family and occasional hired workers.

Peaches keep him busy in the orchard during the summer months.

In addition to the peach and apple orchards, Smith has working honeybee hives. While on the apple orchard tour, youngsters are also introduced to honeybees and the caring of beehives.

"We let them sample honey and show them a practice beehive," he said.

Smith shows students the feeders used to feed honeybees during the winter months after their honey gets low or runs out. He says the mixture of sugar and water gives the bees a strong start for spring.

Smith likes to schedule the October tours in spring.

Anyone interested in scheduling a tour for next fall, may contact him at 265-3470.

Donation jars in Baxter area stores were to help pay burial expenses for two infants who died earlier this month.

But someone stole the jars, according to a complaint received recently at the Putnam Sheriff's Dept.

A young mother phoned the Sheriff's office recently and told Deputy Ron Harris that someone had stolen several glass jars which had been placed in businesses to collect donations to help pay burial expenses for her twin sons.

The infants were born March 5 in Cookeville and died March 8 in a Knoxville hospital.

According to the report by Deputy Harris, the donation jars had been placed at E&S Market, Highway 56 Shell, L&J Market, Nunally's Drug store, and Baxter Bi-Rite.

The mother told the deputy that someone at one of the stores told her the jars were recently collected by a "blond haired male wearing a hat and driving a red truck."

All the jars "went missing" around March 20, the report says.

A Cookeville woman who was injured in a traffic accident on Saturday afternoon has died, police said today.

Jerri Powell, 41, of Bouton Drive, Cookeville, was one of three persons seriously injured in a one-vehicle accident on Bill Smith Road.

It happened just past West Oak Drive about 2:45 p.m. Saturday, according to Cookeville Police Capt. Nathan Honeycutt.

"Jerri Powell was airlifted to Erlanger Hospital in Chattanooga, and we have been informed that since then she has died," Honeycutt said this morning.

Powell was the front seat passenger in a 1993 Dodge Shadow car which was traveling north on Bill Smith Road just before the crash, he said.

The driver was John Jared, 59, of Bouton Drive, Cookeville. Another passenger, Erica Stover, 27, of Lancaster Road, Lancaster, Tenn., was riding in the back seat.

According to Capt. Honeycutt, the car ran off the road and traveled about 130 feet before striking a tree.

All three occupants of the vehicle suffered serious injuries and had to be extricated from the wreckage, Honeycutt said.

The three had not been using seatbelts, he said.

Jerri Powell, who reportedly suffered a head injury, and John Jared were taken by helicopter ambulance to Chattanooga immediately.

Erica Stover was taken to Cookeville Regional Hospital then later transferred to Erlanger, Honeycutt said.

The cause of the accident is not known, but it remains under investigation.
