Source: Johnson City Press Chronicle, TN, 30 Aug. 1979: Solon Gentry to be missed.

The community was jolted yesterday with the word of the death of Solon Gentry.

Mr. Gentry's death was unexpected, the result of a heart attack.

For some 30 years, he was connected with East Tennessee State University. Processions of students knew him first as a teacher of business, later as an administrator. He had ascended to the post of business manager of the university before retiring a couple of years ago.

He was a native of Putnam County but had lived in this area for a long time. He had served as a teacher at Unicoi County High School and at Science Hill High School before joining the faculty at ETSU.

His friends found his dry wit delightful, but he could be firm when the occasion demanded it.

He was a member of Munsey Memorial United Methodist Church and had been the teacher of the Couple's Sunday School Class for perhaps 20 years.

Mr. Gentry had always been concerned with community affairs and had been active in many of them. He was a keen sports fan and maintained an avid interest in ETSU athletic affairs. He served for years on the athletic committee at the university.

To his family, we offer our deepest sympathy. He will long be remembered.

Tony Gentry Story

Source: Putnam Countian, TN: 9 April 1985: In 1923, he did what lots of 16-year-olds dream of but never do-he ran away from his home in Putnam County and joined the circus.

Tony Gentry is 78 now and lives near Hollywood with a friend, a 50-year-old ex-actor who co-starred in several "Tarzan" movies with Johnny Weismuller and Maureen O'Sullivan.

The friend's name is Cheetah. Gentry trained him and lots of other chimpanzees since leaving Tennessee 62 years ago.

Gentry was interviewed recently by Paul Dean, of the Los Angeles Times, at his small ranch near Hollywood.

After leaving home, Gentry worked for a decade with Frank (Bring 'Em Back Alive) buck, famed for his animal collecting expeditions in far-off lands.

Gentry learned his craft and then went to Hollywood as an animal trainer. His first film work was with Fatty Arbuckle. His last film was "Dr. Dolittle."

In his days he trained more chimpanzees than Lassie has pups. Two were rocketed into outer space by Nassau for the Mercury program.

Now he lives out his twilight years with Cheetah, one of several chimps that carried that name.

"We traveled a lot of roads together, and y'know, out of about 50 chimps I trained to perform in the movies, there have been only three, maybe four, that were really special," he said.

There was Jiggs, who became the first Cheetah, serving several Tarzan masters (Herman Brix, Johnny Weismuller, Buster Crabbe). He died and is buried in the Hollywood Pet Cemetery.

And there was Jiggs II, who was in several more Tarzan films, and who went to the Baltimore Zoo when Gentry went off to World War Two. He may have died there or been resold Gentry doesn't know.

During the 1950's, Gentry said there was no time to become attached to the hundreds of chimps he bought and trained for NASA.

In the early days of the rocket program, chimps were used first rather than risking human lives.

Two of Gentry's trainees have the distinction of being the first to orbit the earth in the Mercury capsule, making the trip before the first human, Alan Sheppard.

After Jiggs I and II, Gentry bought Cheetah.

"I bought him from a dealer when they closed down the old Santa Monica pier. Lemme see, when was that? Late '30's sometime. Maybe 1938. Anyway, he was two or three years old then."

The present Cheetah appeared in more than 20 Tarzan movies; plus four movie serials and the Ron Ely television series in the late 60's.

Cheetah is the oldest survivor of the role. Today he spends a lot of time out back of Gentry's house in the old trailer that once was his mobile dressing room.

He snoozes a lot, munches four square meals a day, and, on hot days, is allowed one bottle of beer. On cold nights, Gentry tucks him away with a shot of brandy.

Gentry's house is crammed with the keepings from long-gone yesterdays-plaques, trophies, framed photos of Cheetah with Weismuller.

Referring to his hairy friend, Gentry said, "the old man and I are retired now, but we're having a lot of fun. And you know, he's got a personality that won't quit. He makes me laugh when Don Knotts can't make me laugh."

Chimpanzees live as long as humans, and Cheetah might outlive Gentry. What then for Cheetah?

"A zoo? Universal studios? I'm afraid of those things. What if they got tired of him and sent him out for medical experiments? No sir, not my Cheetah."

Gentry's will calls for Cheetah to be put to sleep upon his trainer's death and for him to be buried near Jigg I in Hollywood's Pet Cemetery.

They take a drive each Sunday. Cheetah likes to wave at the kids.

"We go over to Lake Sherwood and play around the trees, and Cheetah remembers."

He remembers that many Tarzan movies were filmed there, said Gentry.

"He seems to be saying, 'Hey, Weismuller and I were here. I know this place,'" said Gentry.

"And he'll be off, swinging through the trees and remembering the good old day..."

Source: Herald-Citizen, Cookeville, TN: 16 April 1995: The newspaper this week ran an article on Tony Gentry, who ran away from his home near Baxter in 1923 at the age of 16 to join the circus and later found his way to Hollywood and the movies.

Today, Gentry is retired and lives near Hollywood with one of Johnny Weismuller and Maureen O'Sullivan's co-stars from the "Tarzan" movies. Gentry's roommate is Cheetah, the chimp who nearly stole the show from Weismuller on more than one occasion.

After Gentry left home and traveled with the circus, he later worked for Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck, the world famous animal collector and trainer. He later took what he learned from Buck and went to Hollywood where he trained animals for numerous films.

His last movie assignment was on the set of "Dr. Doolittle."

Verda Mae (Pedigo) Maddux, d/o J. Denton Pedigo & Arminta/Armentie Jared.

The death of Mrs. Verda Maddux fell like a shadow on many a hearthstone, and her entire community became a community of weeping. She was born November 20, 1891 and died October 24, 1918. She was married to George Maddux when she was 17 years old and not a shadow crossed their path until the death angel came and called her away. Two little girls and one boy are left motherless by her departure.

The life of Mrs. Maddux was a beautiful example for others because of her purity, firmness, and consecration. Her unbounded love for God was manifest by her daily life. In her home she was the purest of love and met all with a smile. She professed religion when quite small and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In her death the church has lost a sincere and zealous Christian and her family a loving wife and mother. But our loss is Heaven's gain for we know she is at rest with Jesus. Though her life was short her gentle spirit will ever live in the hearts of those who knew here. A Friend.
