Dr. Osborn helped usher in to Middle Tennessee a greater acceptance of modern psychiatry. Dr. Osborn authored a weekly advice column, "Your Mental Health by Dr. Ruth Osborn," in the Herald Citizen newspaper in 1992 and 1993, offering counsel and words of wisdom to write-in readers.

Ruth loved the hills of Tennessee. She was raised on a farm in Monterey. Her grandfather and her great-grandmother were Baptist preachers. As a child, Ruth was saved through grace by an act of faith in Jesus Christ, our Savior. She attended the Methodist church with her father, mother and siblings.

Ruth considered herself "a daughter of Tennessee." She taught her daughters to use "elbow grease." She loved all animals, birds and endangered wildlife. She enjoyed morning walks with her two Great Pyrenees dogs. She liked to cook. She liked to read books about ancient civilization. She was generous in helping others, giving money, clothing, education and shelter to those in need.

While practicing psychiatry in Maryland, Dr. Osborn developed an interest in real estate. She renovated houses on Capitol Hill and nearby areas.

She married her loving husband, Merle Osborn, on Aug. 12, 1973. They lived in Maryland for 18 years before they built their Cookeville dream house near Rocky Point in Cookeville East, on the mountain they developed and years ago affectionately called home. The Osborns donated 92 acres of the mountain to the Tennessee Parks and Greenways Foundation, "conserving land where people and nature can thrive."

Ruth and Merle later resided in Algood, Tennessee, where, for a time, Dr. Osborn ran Duke's Restaurant. In addition, Dr. Osborn owned two dozen rental properties in Putnam County.

Ruth had a brief marriage of two years in later life to William Tomlinson, who preceded her in death in 2015.

She is survived by her three daughters from her first marriage to Harold Reckrey: Joyce Parker of Fairfax, Virginia, Grace (Harlen) Dixon of Algood, Tennessee, and Gloria Miller of Cookeville, Tennessee; two granddaughters, Kara Floyd (Doug) Oberle and Leslie Floyd (Jose') Padilla; and great-granddaughter, Audrey Oberle. She is also survived by nieces and nephews, of special note, Carolynn Harris of Cookeville, Tennessee.

In addition to her parents, Dr. Osborn was preceded in death by her sister, Rose; brother, Bill; two half sisters, Martha and Lena; and two half brothers, Dewey and Steve.

The family will have private funeral services.

Burial of ashes will be at the Clouse Cemetery in upper Board Valley, Putnam County, Tennessee, next to her husband of 34 years, Merle Osborn. Her gravestone inscription reads "A daughter of Tennessee came home."

Dr. Osborn was deeply loved and is greatly missed. Another grey wolf is no longer. May she continue to dwell, now forever at peace, with His loving embrace.

In lieu of flowers, family members and associates are encouraged to make a memorial donation to St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105 or 1-800-822-6344, in tribute to Ruth Osborn, tribute id number 11702850.
