Those who can document their relationship in either the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin of the Colony of Virginia could use this book as a guide.

Captain Thomas Jarnagin came to Jefferson Co., TN in 1783, left the region of Danville, VA about 1780 and came to DeVault's Ford on Watauga River, where for a time he lived in a block house. Soon he found a home at the mouth of Long Crek on the banks of Nolachucky, and thirty miles ahead of civilization, he built a mill. At the 1784 session of the court "Thomas Jarnagin hath leave to build a mill on Long Creek." Thomas served as a Captain during the American Revolution.

pg. 99 - Where the First Settlers in Jefferson County Lived:

Goodspeed's History gives us a fair idea of who the first settlers of Jefferson Co., TN were, and where in the County and surrounding country, they lived. Jefferson County received its first contingent of pioneer families as early as 1783. At that time the territory included all of the present Hamblen, Cocke and Sevier countries.

Among the first were:

Robert McFarland Alexander Outlaw Thomas Jarnigan James Hill Wesley White
James Randolph Joseph Copeland Robert Gentry James Hubbard

pg. 100 - Tennessee Cousins - 1950

Thomas Jarnigan of Jefferson County and his descendants:

Capt. Thomas Jarnigan, who settled on the North side of "Chucky" river about four miles from its mouth in 1784-5, built the first mill in Jefferson County on Long Creek. According to Goodspeed's History, he was from somewhere on the Dan River "in Virginia." The mistake in this statement is that, instead, he came from North Carolina, though perhaps from that part of it through which, dropping down out of Virginia, the Dan River runs. Originally, the Jarnigan family came from Nansemond County, Virginia; from thence to Chowan & Bertie counties, on down into the Nuese River country in Johnston & Duplin and Sampson countires. The Jarnigans intermarried in North Carolina with the Needham Bryan family, and there was a Needham Jarnigan, among others. Capt. Thomas, or his father moved farther west to Orange County, and along the Dan River, and then, later, probably was among those who accompied General James Robertson to the Watauga settlement. He lived in Carter or in Washington County in a Fort for a year or so, and when the lands below were opened for settlement, he came along with many neighbors to the Nollichucky River in Jefferson County, TN.

For the North Carolina and Nansemond County, Virginia Jarnigan material, see Lost Tribes of North Carolina, pag. 76-77. One the North Carolina records the name was often spelled Jernigan.

Chesley Jarnagin's administrators followed the law in selling a public auction the personal property of the estate, and for Martha and her children to continue to honor Mary Jarnagin's lease. At the sale most of the personal property was bought by the family necessary to maintain the household and to continue the farming operation. They took the best of care of Mary Jarnagin and apparently operated the land with some measure of success as well as the grist mill. Mary Jarnagin died in 1829.

Martha and Daniel were living in Grainger Co, TN in 1830 with apparently 6 children at home and Jeremiah and Drury Jarnagin living nearby.

Notes for DANIEL SR. GOAN:

Thomas Jarnagin by Lee L. Powers 1746-1802, 1985 Edition, pg. 172 & 173 : 245-252

Daniel Goan, the son of Daniel and Susannah Inman Goan, was living with his parents on the north side of the Nolichucky River above the mouth of Long Creek in Jefferson Co., TN, 26 June 1796, when he and Martha Priscilla Jarnagin, the daughter of Thomas and Mary Witt Jarnagin, were married. The groom and bride, no doubt encouraged by her father, moved into a dwelling on the premises of the Jarnagin homeplace known as Mount Harmony located on the north side of the river at the mouth of Long Creek. At this time Jeremiah, about 13 years of age, was the oldest male member of the household. While he possessed several slaves, Captain Thomas Jarnagin was seeking someone to run the grist mill and placed young Daniel in charge. He later operated a still near the mill.

Daniel and Priscilla Goan lived on Richland Creek about forty years. They apparently managed to rear and school their children without financial problems and there is ample evidence of a harmonious relationship with their Jarnagin and Lea kinfolk as well as their neighbors.

When Martha Priscilla Goan died about 1841, Daniel was permitted by law to retain all personal property and possession of the land during his life. Title to the land then passed to the children of Priscilla. The children had the privilege of selling their undivided interest in the land, and some did, however, their father lived there with full possession until he died.

Daniel married second, Jane Dyer.

Following their marriage, Daniel and Priscilla Goan lived for six years in a dwelling, at the homeplace of Thomas and Mary Witt Jarnagin on Long Creek in Jefferson Co., TN. When Thomas Jarnagin died in 1802, Daniel and Priscilla were allotted a choice boundary of 338 acres located on Richland Creek in Grainger Co., TN, and personal property valued at $650.00. They moved to their land in late 1802, where they reared and schooled eleven children. They continued to live on their land the remainder of their lives. Priscilla died in 1841. Danile married Jane Dyer.

Anna Jarnagin died October 2, 1833 of "congestive fever." While the Carson Family History, page 21, referring to the burial of Samuel and Anna states, "They are presumed to have been buried in the old Hopewell Cemetery, which is so overgrown and neglected that the search for markers is fruitless," Anna was laid to rest in the Thomas Jarnagin family cemetery located on the boundary of one thousand acres on the north side of the Nolichucky River at the mouth of Long Creek owned by Capt. Thomas at the time of his death. her grave is marked by a head tombstone bearing, "Sacred to the Memory of Anna Jarnagin consort of Samuel Carosn age 55 years, 3 months."

Samuel Carson followed Anna in death seventeen years later, March 21, 1850, at his home located on the north side of French Broad River upstream a few miles from Dandridge. His eldest daughter, Lavinia, and her husband, James Harvey Carson, were living with him at the time of his death. Lavinia, not ever having children probably enjoyed a freer relationship with her father whose esteem for James Harvey Carson is an established reality. At the time of Anna's death, apparently all of the children had married and moved away except Elizabeth whose marriage was a little more than two years later and William, age fifteen. It is very likely that Lavinia and James had been members of Samuel's household several years prior to his demise. The question arises as to where Samuel was buried. Considering the many factors involved, it is reasonable to believe his children would have marked his grave with an appropriate memorial large enough to be easily located. The lack of any evidence in support of the statement of Samuel Carson's grave being located in the area of Dandridge, or on the farm where he died, increases the probability that he was buried beside his wife's grave in the Thomas Jarnagin family cemetery. The plot joinign the south side of her grave is marked with an unnamed stone at both the head and foot of the grave. The importance of the cemetery as a burial ground had not reached its peak in 1850. Samuel Carson had enjoyed a close reallationship during the life time of each of those buried there before 1850.

Samuel Carson died intestate. A widower, and not having any reason for special bequests to any of his surviving children or their herirs, the existing laws were sufficient to provide for an equal distribution of the property. Having full knowledge of this situation, he very likely reached a decision that a will was not necessary. He had wisely provided advances to his children when they were in need. After all, thier family background, religious and educational training, and their father's ability to have always provided well for them would have been their most valuable inheritance.

James Harvey Carson, Lavinia's husband was appointed administrator of the estate of Samuel Carson, deceased. His report proresented to the Court of Jefferson County, sworn to and subscribed before James Nicholson, Clerk, June 7, 1852, is a precise instrument covering six large pages. It was accepted and duly recorded in the office of the County Court Clerk at Dandridge, TN.

Source: Thomas Jarnagin by Lee L. Powers 1746-1802: 1985 Edition: pgs. 254, 255, 256, 184-188. The information relative to Samuel and Anna Jarnagin has come from various sources including the North Carolina records of land grants issued in the area which is now the State of Tennessee; the Court House at Dandridge, TN; Tennessee State Library and Archives; the Carson Family History by F.T. Carson and Mrs. W. C. Trotters, Jr., of Greenville, MS.

Samuel died at his farm on the south side of French Broad River in Jefferson Co., TN. He was the son of William and Mary Carson of Augusta Co., VA and grandson of Samuel Carson born in Ireland. Married 26 January 1803 by Parson Henderson to Anna Jarnagin (twin). Anna is buried in a marked grave in the Thomas Jarnagin family cemetery, Hamblen Co., TN. There is evidence of Samuel and his mother, Mary, also being buried adjacent to Anna's grave.

Thomas Jarnagin by Lee L. Powers 1746-1802, 1985 Edition.

Samuel Carson, accompanied by his brother John and first cousin David Carson Jr., migrated from Shenandoah Valley in Virginia to Jefferson County, Tennessee, apparently in the summer of 1793. Land grant file No. 1596, Greene Co., (Tennessee records, Raleigh, NC) a boundary of 100 acres on north side of French Broad River, Jefferson Co., entered in 1780, was assigned to Samuel Cross and surveyed by Abraham Swagerty for Carson in 1793, and conveyed to Samuel Carson February 22, 1795. One of the chain bearers named on the survey was David Carson Jr. born August 20, 1760, married September 26, 1779, to Cynthia Meek.

Samuel Carson attended the sale of the personal property of Thomas Jarnagin, deceased in the summer of 1802, and purchased some items. Following his marriage in 1803 to Anna Jarnagin, there are many records of a close relationship with members of the Jarnagin family, including Mary Witt Jarnagin.

He bought numerous boundaries of land in Jefferson County and lived for a few years after 1803 in the proximity of the Long Creek community. He later made his permanent home on a boundary of 603 acres located upstream a few miles on the French Broad River from Dandridge. It included 300 acres of the original James Randolph boundary. The financial resources of Samuel Carson leave no doubt of a very generous measure of success. He and his family were faithful members of the old Baptist Church of Dandridge, the eminent Duke Kimbrough being pastor from the time it was constituted until 1849. His children were all well educated. As they married, when necessary, he provided them with funds to establish their households.

Samuel Carson's homeplace of 603 acres contained about 300 acres of the James Randolph original grant. he was one of the eight earliest settlers reaching the area to become Jefferson County named by Dr. J.F.G. Ramsey in his Annals of Tennessee. In the final disposition of the estate, this boundary was acquired by James Harvey and Lavinia Carson. A clause in the conveyance states, "where he (Samuel Carson) died." James and Lavinia would have also acquired such furnishings, livestock, farming equipment and possibly some of the slaves necessary to live in the dwelling and operate the farm.

Quoting from the Carson Family History, "Samuel Carson was a man of means and influence in his day. he seems to have been a pillar of the old Dandridge Baptist Church, under the pastorate of Elder Duke Kimbrough, the only pastor the church had during the residence of Samuel Carson in that vicinity. He made substantial gifts to the church."

James Harvey Carson became a man of wealth and influence. It can be taken for granted that Samuel Carson and daughter, Lavinia, had an important role in aiding this worthwhile career. he acquired large land holdings in the proximity of Dandridge. He was closely associated with the Baptist Church there and a member of the Board of Trustees of Mossy Creek Baptist College. The church at Dandridge has a very large memorial window dedicated to the memory of J. H. Carson; another window joining it on the right is dedicated to the memory of his wife, Lavinia; and a window on the left is dedicated as a memorial to Samuel Carson. James Harvey and Lavinia Carson are buried side by side in the Hopewell Cemetery at Dandridge.

CARSON-NEWMAN COLLEGE

The Danridge Baptist Church formed a Committee in early 1851 to promote the erection of a college to train young men for the ministry in Jefferson County, TN. Included on the Committee were James Harvey Carson, Joseph Manning, Ephraim Moore, Joseph Hale, T.H. Lane, Jonathan Quarles, James Lacy, William Rogers, Grant Taylor William Ballew, Dr. William F. Hale, C.H. Tipton, Coleman and Joseph Witt (sons of Caleb Witt the brother of Mary Witt Jarnagin), T.M. Newsman, S.I. Newman, R.R. Bryan and Nelson Bowen. This Committee organized the "Baptist Educational Society of East Tennessee" to promote among other things, education in general and the erection of a school building near Mossey Creek.

Col. Henry Hubbard from Jefferson County assumed the responsibility for introducing and steering the first charter through the Tennessee Legislature. The charter was granted December 5, 1851. It also named the first Board of Trustees for the new school which included James Harvey Carson and many of the members of the original Committee. James H. Carson was closely connected with the College for many years as a founding father, a trustee and a benefactor. When he died in 1880, he left a bequest of about $20,000 to the College. In recognition of James Harvey and Lavinia Carson's benevolence, the Mossey Creek Baptist College was changed to the name Carson College. In 1889, Carson College, a boy's school, was united with Newman College, a girl's school. The two merged schools became a co-educational institution under the name of Carson and Newman College located at Jefferson City, Tennessee. About 1924, the name was changed to its present form, Carson-Newman College.

 He was born and reared on a farm. His father being a preacher, and away from home most of the time, and his four older brothers having married or gone to the War of 1812, was up against the necessity of taking the lead on the farm and supporting the family. This circumstance interfered with his getting an education. Nevertheless, when it was possible for him to be spared from the farm, he attended the neighborhood schools, and was an apt scholar. His father also sent him three months to a grammar school, five miles from home, then three months to the Dandridge Academy, and next to the Columbian Academy, where he made considerable attainments in science and philosophy, and studied Latin. This ended his schooling; but he and his brothers read and studied at home, and attended debating societies far and near, always taking a part.

William Allen Montgomery is an only son of William H. and Sarah Montgomery. He was born in Jefferson County, Tennessee, November 16, 1829. His mother was a daughter of Chesley Jarnagin, of Welsh descent. His grandfather, William Montgomery, was of English extraction but born in South Carolina. The family into which he married, in North Carolina, was partly Irish. Coming to Tennessee at an early day he settled in Jefferson County, a little below Dandridge, where his son, William H., and his grandson, William A., were born. His grandmother, on the maternal side, a daughter of Elder Isaac Barton, was of Dutch and Huguenot descent. His great-grandfather, Isaac Barton, was one of Tennessee's earliest pioneers - a Baptist preacher who had the honor of giving to the United States Senate a gifted son and to the Tennessee bar a great-grandson of ability and distinction.

At the age of 14 young Montgomery professed faith in Christ and was baptized. In 1845, at the age of 16, he entered the University of Tennessee, graduating in his twenty-first year (1850), with the first honors of his class.

As President of Carson College, and later of Carson and Newman (1888-1892) and professor of metaphysics and theology, he showed himself a fine organizer and an able teacher. It was during his administration that the marriage of Carson and Newman took place and co-education became the order of the day for East Tennessee Baptists.

From Carson College he received his D.D. in 1870; from his alma mater, the University of Tennessee, he received the honor of an L.L.D. degree in 1876.

It was as a preacher, however, that he excelled. Preaching was his forte. He had preaching gifts in an eminent degree. The marked elements of his strength were originality, a mind trained to think, the power of clear, forceful statement, ability to drive the plowshare of incisive propositions through a subject laying out all its contents and exposing them to view. He preached on great subjects, handling them masterfully, his full-orbed mind illuminating them on all sides. He could think on his feet, without notes, with a mental intensity that was electrical in its effect. He gripped his subject and his audience alike—was alike master of subjects and "master of assemblies."

His last pastorate was at Decatur, GA, during which he was President of the Pastors' Conference of Atlanta, respected and greatly loved by his brethren. The last two years of his life were spent in the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Moore, of near Rankin, Tennessee not far from the old Montgomery home. It was here that he died, 16 December 1905. His funeral sermon was preached by his pastor, Elder W. C. Hale, and his body was interred in the Beth Car Cemetery, near Leadvale, TN. He was survived by his beloved companion, four sons and three daughters.

William and Rebecca Morrow, grand-parents of William I. I. Morrow, migrated from Europe and settled first in Augusta Co., VA, where David, their only son was born. They moved from Virginia to Washington Co., North Carolina then to Green Co., North Carolina, and finally to Jefferson Co., Tennessee.

David married Priscilla Daugherty (the name was called Doherty by Ramsey) the daughter of Colonel George Daugherty of Jefferson Co., in 1800. Fourteen children were born to David and Priscilla Morrow in Jefferson Co., the second being William Isaac Irvin born in 1802. He became a physician at age 24.

Dr. William I.I. Morrow and Lavinia Lea Jarnagin were married in June 1826 in Jefferson County. At the sale of the personal property of Chesley Jarnagin, deceased, in September 1826 he purchased a slave, Nathan, for $451.00. In 1830, Dr. Morrow and Lavinia conveyed her one-eighth undivided interest in her father's real property to John W. Moser for $300. Dr. Morrow, Lavinia and their three children moved to Madison County, Tennessee. On September 21, he was appointed Attending Physician to an attachment of the U.S. Army moving the Cherokees to an Indian Reservation located in the West instigated by President Andrew Jackson. He returned to his home in Madison Co. In 1851, he returned West as Agent to the Indians under an appointment received from President Filmore. He was this time accompanied by his family traveling overland in a caravan of covered wagons. His mother and father (David and Priscilla Morrow), sister Mary (Morrow) Anderson and two children, and brother David Chesley Morrow and probably others were members of the caravan. Their destination was Newton Co., Missouri, where they permanently settled on a farm. He was Agent for Quapaw, Seneca, Shawnee and Usage Indian tribes.

The 1860 census, Neosho Township, Newton Co., Missouri, lists W.I.I. Morrow age 58, Lavinia 53, David 31, Barton 18, and Priscilla age 13. This conforms with their birthdays. He apparently abandoned his medical practice. He served as Clerk of Court of Newton County, Missouri, 1865-1870.

12. WILLIAM CALVIN SR.⁴ JARNAGIN (*CHESLEY*³, *THOMAS*², *JOHN*¹ JARNIGAN) was born November 29, 1809 in Grainer Co., TN, and died July 26, 1833 in Mount Harmony, Grainger Co., TN. He married KATHERINE KELLEY MOSER, daughter of PHILLIP MOSER and SARAH. She was born March 27, 1815 in Long Creek, Jefferson Co., TN, and died July 25, 1857 in Jefferson Co., TN.

Notes for WILLIAM CALVIN SR. JARNAGIN:

William Calvins's death was a tragic event. Katherine persuaded her brother, John Moser, and his bride of a few months to move in with her. He became the guardian of both Katherine and her son and in the course of events acquired the Jarnagin homeplace and surrounding land living there until his death in 1897. By 1833, it was discovered that Chesley Jarnagin's title to the dower lot was not legal. It was finally settled in court clearing all eight shares. John Moser purchased through a decree by the court the other four shares of Spencer, Bynum, Mary and Hampton Lea Jarnagin for $633.33 per share, June 24, 1837.

13. NANCY⁴ GOAN (MARTHA PRISCILLA³ JARNAGIN, THOMAS², JOHN¹ JARNIGAN) was born Abt. 1800 in Mount Harmony, Jefferson Co., TN. She married JAMES RANDOLPH Abt. 1820, son of HENRY RANDOLPH.

Notes for NANCY GOAN:

After the death of her husband in 1827, Nancy moved to Grainger Co., TN and it is assumed that she lived with her parents while the three children were growing and attending school. When her sons reached the age for advanced schooling, Nancy returned to Jefferson Co., TN to place them in Holston College at New Market, TN, a church school. Both boys were ambitious to be lawyers. Henry Randolph, her late husband's father, an influential citizen of Jefferson Co., TN was also pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church located in the county. It is most likely that he aided Nancy financially to rear and educate his grandchildren. He died in 1848 after the boys had started their careers as lawyers.

Notes for JAMES RANDOLPH:

Thomas Jarnagin by Lee L. Powers 1746-1802, 1985 Edition: pgs. 172 & 173.

James Randolph, the son of Henry Randolph and the grandson of James Randolph of Jefferson Co., TN living south side of French Broad River on boundary of 640 acres acquired 1785. Nancy and James moved to the area in Jefferson Co., later to become White Pine. Issue 3 children. James died in 1827 and Nancy returned to Grainger Co., TN probably living with her parents to rear and school her children. When her boys were ready for advanced schooling, she returned to Jefferson Co., TN and enrolled them in Holston College at New Market, TN.

Nancy Goan married James Randolph about 1820, the son of Henry Randolph and grandson of James Randolph. James Randolph migrated to Washington Co., NC, later TN about 1777, where he acquired a boundary of 332 acres located on Big Limestone Creek conveyed to him by the new State of NC. His son, Henry, was born there in 1778. James moved to a boundary of 640 acres on the south side of the French Broad River four miles upstream from later Dandridge, TN in 1785. Henry became pastor of Friendship Baptist Church in Jefferson Co., TN. he died in 1848.

Following their marriage James and Nancy lived in the area that later became White Pine, located about six miles north of the Randolph farm. W. Henry Randolph was born in 1822, James Henry Randolph in 1825 and Mary Randolph in 1827. James Randolph died in 1827, and Nancy returned to Grainger Co., TN, and it is assumed that she lived with her parents while the children were growing and attending school. When her sons reached the age for advanced schooling, Nancy returned to Jefferson Co., TN to enroll them in Holston College, a church school at New Market, TN. Both boys were ambitious to become lawyers. It is most likely that Reverend Henry Randolph helped Nancy financially with the education of his grandsons.

Isaac Kimbrough, a son of the second marriage, became a preacher. He made a profession of religion at the age of fourteen and, uniting with the French Broad (now the Dandridge) Baptist Church, was baptized, most likely, by his father, Elder Duke Kimbrough, who at the time was pastor of the church. Isaac Kimbrough served the church as clerk and deacon for a number of years.

Isaac Kimbrough reared a large family of well-to-do children, and has at least one grandson who is a preacher, Isaac Z. Kimbrough, who has held good pastorates in Tennessee, Arkansas and other states.

Isaac Kimbrough served the church as clerk and deacon for a number of year and, as shown by the minutes, was often appointed on committees to "wait on" delinquent and erring members. On Monday following the date of a regular meeting day, "March, fourth Saturday, 1842," invited ministerial brethren being present, to begin a "protracted meeting," the church "concluded to have Brother Isaac Kimbrough ordained, which was done by the following presbytery, day and date as above: Duke Kimbrough, John Lockhart, Caswell Tipton, Robert G. Kimbrough."

Isaac Kimbrough reared a large family of well-to-do children, and has at least one grandson who is a preacher, Isaac Z. Kimbrough, who has held good pastorates in Tennessee, Arkansas and other states.
