Satellites Aid Operation

WHUB has four satellites at the studios on East Spring, which bring a myriad of programming to this area that might not otherwise be available.

CBS news broadcasts and other feature programming comes via one of the large satellites, while Unit Press International news comes from another.

Additional satellites on the studio's roof bring some feature programs such as the Saturday and Sunday popular music shows, Tennessee Radio Network and National Weather Service.

WHUB's tower is located on Hickory Avenue near Tennessee Tech, and the WHUB-FM antenna is located on Firetower Mountain east of Cookeville.

These satellite dishes and antennas are maintained by chief engineer Ausin Stinnett.
