Information on the 13th Tennessee Cavalry (Dibrell's) 8th Tennessee Cavalry CSA
{aka 13th Tennessee (Dibrell's) Cavalry} Company K.
Organized Sep 15, 1862 at Sparta, White County
Bryant M. Swearingen; resigned in 1864
(2nd Lt. Elijah W. Terry commanded the company the last 18 months)

The 8th Tennessee Cavalry was initially organized in White County as independent partisan rangers on September 4, 1862, with 12 companies under the command of Colonel George G. Dibrell. The first muster was held near Sparta in September 1862, and consisted of 921 men, primarily farm workers from Jackson, Overton, Putnam and White counties.

On October 8, the regiment marched from Sparta to Murfreesboro, Tennessee to join Brigadier General Nathan B. Forrest's Brigade.

There it was reorganized into 10 companies and mustered into the CSA as the 8th Regiment, Tennessee Cavalry. While at Murfreesboro, the regiment was equipped with 400 flintlock muskets and 600 sabers -- the only issue of arms ever made to it by the Confederate Government.

Its first military assignment was to scout and establish pickets outside the city of Nashville. A skirmish at Neely's Bend, north of the city, was the first of several while stationed in that area.

The 8th Tennessee Cavalry was involved in a remarkable number of battles and skirmishes throughout the Civil War and suffered considerable casualties. It fought in engagements ranging from west Tennessee into southern Virginia, through the Carolinas and into Georgia. The men fought not only on horseback, but frequently engaged the enemy dismounted and sometimes in hand-to-hand combat as happened at Chickamauga. Although it was regularly short of arms and supplies and its recruits usually had little or no training, the regiment earned a reputation for discipline and dependability. Writing after the war, General Dibrell wrote "that not a piece of artillery was ever lost when supported by the Eighth. Huggin's company of artillery used to say that they had no fear of going into battle when supported by the Tennessee cavalry brigade, of which the Eighth was a part."

Its last engagement was at Beulah, NC on April 11, 1865. The next day, the regiment learned that rumors of Lee's surrender were true and marched to Greensboro, NC. From there, it helped escort President Jefferson Davis and his cabinet to Abbeville, SC where the command was dissolved. The 8th Tennessee, consisting of only 381 men, marched to Washington, Georgia and surrendered to the 4th Iowa Cavalry on May 3rd. The men were paroled on May 9, 1865, and returned to Tennessee.

While camped in Polk County, the men were confronted by a squad of federal soldiers who brought them to the nearby city of Cleveland. They were placed under guard and individually searched for any item bearing the "U.S." insignia. The regiment was allowed to leave later that evening, but not without enduring some harassment from a few of the local citizens.

The 8th Tennessee entered Chattanooga the following day and suffered more humiliation. The provost marshal, falsely claiming that he was under orders, confiscated the horses from those with the rank of private. After the parole of each soldier was inspected, the regiment, annoyed but in good spirits, continued its homeward journey on foot.

The 8th Tennessee Cavalry is sometimes referred to as the 13th Tennessee Cavalry. Indeed, the A. & I.G.O. recognized the unit by the latter designation. After the war, General Dibrell provided an explanation:

Byrum Frank Huddleston and his children.

Seated are William Lowery Huddleston; Byrum Frank Huddleston & Mary Elizabeth "Bettie" Huddleston. Standing is Robert Alexander Huddleston; Charlie L. Huddleston; Ocie Huddleston; & Juda Frances (Huddleston) Whiteaker. Not in photograph was his daughter, Hixie Viola (Huddleston) Carr wife of Joseph Shaw Carr who moved to TX. Joseph Shaw Carr had a daughter named Pearl J. Huddleston who md Charles "Charlie" Bradley Ensor - Chapter 8 - Pearl's mother was Mary Elizabeth "Bettie" Huddleston. Joseph was married at that time to her sister, Hixie Viola Huddleston when Pearl was born.

When the regiment was mustered at Murfreesboro by Col. Charles Carroll it was the Eighth Regiment of Tennessee Cavalry, and it bore that name thereafter. Col. Carroll was captured before sending off his muster, and when received at Richmond the regiment was numbered the Thirteenth; but we never recognized that number, and it was not so known in the army.

It is important not to confuse this regiment with the 8th Tennessee (Smith's) Cavalry. That unit was organized in January 1863, and was known in the field as the 4th Tennessee Cavalry.

The following is a portion of the first day’s minutes of the next succeeding July 1842 Term of the Circuit Court of Putnam County:

“July Term 1842.” “Be it remembered that at a Court of Pleas began and held at the White Plains in and for the County of Putnam in the State of Tennessee, on the Second Monday, it being the 11th day of July in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Forty-Two. Present the Honorable Abraham Caruthers, one of the Judges of the Circuit Courts of the State of Tennessee and assigned to hold the Courts of the Fourth Judicial Circuit in said State; who took his seat, ordered said Court to be opened and proceeded to dispatch the business thereof.”

Note: Issac Alexander Huddleston received a land grant signed by Gov. James K. Polk in 1839 for land in what was then White County, TN. Isaac and Jane Allison lived in a two-story log cabin SE of the Bev Clouse place on the Elbert Mackie Road. Judith Nicholas had lived in the Salem are of White County before her first marriage to Mr. Wallace who owned a house and property in what was then Smith County, around the present day Rock Springs area of Putnam County. After Jane died, Isaac married the young widow, Judith Nicholas Wallace, and she insisted he relocate to her place in Rock Springs. Isaac raised his children from his three wives in that cabin in Rock Springs.

Judith was from the hill country in Putnam County, TN. She, not wishing to sell her old farmstead and furniture, caused Isaac A. to leave his farm in the Salem community and relocate to Judith's farm in Rock Springs near Buffalo Valley, TN. She has many descendents originating around the hill country area. The 1840 White Co., TN census lists Judith as a single mother with one son less than 5 years old. The son was reported to have been sent to Texas to live with relatives.

Audrey June I have some info that's not complete, such as: the Dillard family in Club Springs. Ernestine is 70 and md a Bennett--her sis came up from FL to visit her and knew a lot of stories and had a lot of pictures, in some tin--she was 80, her name is Jesse Noll--she md a soldier who was on maneuvers here in the 40's. That was a very interesting occasion as I remember--the banks and creeks were full of soldiers, whether taking a bath or climbing the boulders with their jeeps and occasionally one would turn over and land in the creek--we sat on the front porch and watched "live" action. I got side-tracked here with a moment back in my time. Back to the Dillard's: Ernestine kept telling us that Ted was kin to them thru the Huddleston's, so I finally figured out how by referring back to the Book of Allison. Isaac & Jane had 9 children. One, Chas Huddleston was Ted's gr-grand (they had a pic of him which is in the bk of Allison). SARAH ADELINE HUDDLESTON, bro of Chas was 2nd child of Isaac & Jane, b 11 Apr 1829, md William Dillard. On pg. 740 is a list of Sarah's 6 children. These girls went back thru Jonathan Dillard. They had a pic of two of Jonathan's sisters, Mary Dillard & Ausie Dillard, made in 1928. The dog's name in the pic was Brownie.

Carolyn (Shanks) Huddleston, w/o Ted Huddleston.

This is Mary & Ausie Dillard made in 1928, daus of Sarah Adeline Huddleston Dillard--Sarah dau of Isaac & Jane Huddleston.

Connie Norton

Mary Jane Price Huddleston (Feb. 5, 1883- June 16, 1940) and Jordan David Huddleston (Jan. 4, 1864-Aug. 25, 1964) owned a hardware store in White County. Connie Norton remembers Jordan offering to give a nickle each if she and her sister would let him "count their ribs." This was around 1937, during the height of the Great Depression. When they obliged and got their nickles, they would run down to the restaurant on the corner and get a double dip ice cream cone.
